DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, line 3, what is comprising a plurality of conductors joint end, the core? The winding? Also, "said conductors" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Umeda et al (Patent No 6,124,660).

Umeda et al discloses a stator for a generator (see figure 1), stator winding having a plurality of conductor joint end portions 61d (see figure 7) joined to each other and joined end portions comprise a molten metal 61e of a lower melting point than the conductors (column 8, lines 23-36).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Umeda et al in view of Baines.

Umeda et al discloses a stator for a generator (see figure 1), stator winding having a plurality of conductor joint end portions 61d (see figure 7) joined to each other and joined end portions comprise a molten metal 61e of a lower melting point than the conductors (column 8, lines 23-36).

However, Baines does not disclose using an alloy for a molten metal.

On the other hand, Baines discloses for the purpose of making a connection of a lead wire to a motor contact that it is well known in the art to use copper or a copper alloy as a molten metal (column 1, lines 15-18).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design a stator as disclosed by Umeda et al and to modify the invention by using molten metal alloy for the purpose of making a connection of a lead wire to a motor contact as disclosed by Baines.

7. Claims 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Umeda et al and Baines as applied to claim 2 above, and further in view of ordinary skill in the art.

The combined stator discloses all of the elements above. However, the combined stator does not disclose using the material for the additive metal.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the material use for the additive metal (Cu-P, Ag or Ag alloy, Sn or Sn alloy), since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
